CEDEFOP - European Centre for the Development of Vocational Training
www.cedefop.europa.eu/EN/

Cedefop, the European Centre for the Development of Vocational Training, established in 1975, is a European agency that helps promote and develop vocational education and training in the European Union. It is the EU's reference centre for vocational education and training. Cedefop was one of the first specialised and decentralised agencies set up to provide scientific and technical know-how in specific fields and promote exchanges of ideas between different European partners. Cedefop works to promote a European area of lifelong learning throughout an enlarged EU. It does this by providing information on and analyses of vocational education and training systems, policies, research and practice.

ReferNet
<http://refernet.hu>

ReferNet is a network created by Cedefop in 2002 to provide information on national vocational education and training (VET) systems and policies in Member States, Iceland and Norway. This information is displayed in Cedefop databases and is used for comparative studies. At country level it gives valuable insights into national VET systems. The network builds upon national consortia in each partner country. Every consortium is led by a coordinating institution and consists of key organisations involved in VET activities, including social partners.

The Observatory for Educational Development www.observatory.org.hu/en/?page_id=2

In Hungary the Observatory for Educational Development coordinates Refernet related affairs. The Observatory for Educational Development conducts information collection and analysis, development and networking activities aiming at contributing to the development of vocational education and training.

Introduction

Euroguidance Hungary started operating in Szeged in 2000 in the framework of the Leonardo da Vinci Programme of the European Commission. Presently it operates as a unit of the National Employment Service and the National Labour Office. During the period of 2014-2020 the European Union background is provided by the ERASMUS+ programme. The main objectives of the centre are to support vocational guidance, lifelong learning and international mobility, promote Hungarian and international counselling projects as well as language learning and employability.

On our website, www.npk.hu and www.euroguidance.hu you can find lots of information on European education opportunities, higher education institutions as well as on vocational trainings. Visitors can also gain information on the conditions of entering the tertiary education and on the mutual recognition of qualifications.

Guidance in Hungary

In Hungary guidance activities and development are overseen by both the Ministry for the National Economy and the Ministry of Human Capacities. Since establishing the European Lifelong Guidance Policy Network (ELGPN) at EU level, and with the start of the SROP 2.2.2. programme (Developing a Lifelong Guidance System in Hungary), national developments have been given a new impetus. The programme lays special emphasis on developing tools and services used in guidance and career counselling interventions as well as on the training of counsellors. The first phase of the programme was realised between 2008-2010, currently the second phase is being implemented between 2012-2015. More information in Hungarian:

www.eletpalya.munka.hu

In 2010 the National Guidance Portal (Nemzeti Pályaorientációs Portál) was launched within the framework of the SROP 2.2.2. programme. The portal provides useful information about the world of education and labour and different jobs and professions. Career orientation questionnaires can be filled in to help career planning.

The national journal of lifelong guidance and counselling (Életpálya-tanácsadás) provides useful information and good practices for guidance practitioners and guidance professionals: <http://eletpalya.munka.hu/eletpalya-tanacsadas-folyoirat>

The Hungarian LLG Council (Nemzeti Pályaorientációs Tanács, NPT) was founded in January 2008, its members include the representatives of the relevant ministries and different organisations related to guidance and counselling. The most important role of the council was to harmonise national lifelong guidance policy decisions and developments with international and community priorities. More information about the results of the Hungarian LLG Council can be found at: <http://eletpalya.munka.hu/web/eletpalya-folyoirat/npt>. The Hungarian LLG Council ceased to function in 2012, its role then was assigned to the Guidance Committee (Pályaorientációs Bizottság) of the National Council of Vocational and Adult Education (Nemzeti Szakképzési és Felnőttképzési Tanács) which is responsible for the development of the vocational and adult education system. The main role of the Guidance Committee is to support guidance related decisions and developments within the field of labour and education and help harmonise national guidance policy measures and developments. Counselling and guidance service providers:

For primary and secondary school students career guidance is a separate field of development according to the National Core Curriculum (The Hungarian Official Journal of 66/04.06.2012). Without being a separate subject, career guidance is offered mainly under life management and practical skills.

Introduced with World Bank support, vocational orientation has been part of the secondary vocational school's curriculum since the 1990s. Vocational orientation is also part of the trade school's curriculum, career education has been an obligatory subject in grade 9 since 2006. More information on the new VET legislation and the content of vocational orientation (85. §) is available at:

www.magyarokozlony.hu/pdf/11406.

The Higher Education Act 2006 makes it obligatory for the higher education institutions to provide academic and career counselling for their students and conduct follow-up studies (Act LXXXIX of 2005 on Higher Education: http://net.jogtar.hu/jr/gen/hjegy_doc.cgi?docid=A0600079.KOR). The majority of higher education institutions offer such services in the form of career centres. Their availability and the level of services provided are improving continually.

The core tasks of the capital and county labour centres and their branch offices include not only employment and job-search counselling but also guidance, career and psychological counselling, as well as information provision on training opportunities. The services are available for both employees and job seekers. Further information on labour market services and related allowances:

http://net.jogtar.hu/jr/gen/hjegy_doc.cgi?docid=A0000030.GM.

Based on the German BIZ system, a network of Employment Information Centres (Foglalkozási Információs Tanácsadó, FIT) was established in 1994. The FIT centres offer direct access to various resources, such as films and information folders on occupations.

Euroguidance Hungary (www.euroguidance.hu), started operating in 2000 as part of the European Commission's Euroguidance Network to support guidance and mobility. Currently it is operating under the National Labour Office and its main tasks include collecting and providing information on European mobility and training possibilities. Both the FIT centres and Euroguidance Hungary support self-service information.

Some training and local non-profit institutions provide guidance and counselling services as part of their training programmes. In addition several county cultural centres and family assistance offices offer career guidance services.

Target groups

The Hungarian guidance and counselling services are available for the following target groups:

- pupils in primary schools (choosing a career path and appropriate secondary school);
- students in upper secondary education (choosing a higher education or a vocational programme);
- parents of school children;
- career-starters;
- job-seekers;
- adults who need to be further/retrained (e.g. older or low-skilled workers);
- adults planning to participate in further vocational/professional training;
- adults in need of career-affirmation or career support;
- inactive adults planning to return to the world of work.

For the Roma and people with disabilities, several national or regional programmes offer specialised services and the NGOs excel in providing counselling services for students with learning difficulties or mental health problems. Since in Hungary the number of migrants is not significant, there are no institutionalised services for them, only a few NGOs offer counselling services for the migrants (e.g. Artemisszó Foundation).
